Carta was written in Medieval Latin on Parchment. The scribes wrote in tiny. This is the seal of King John, which would have been attached to the Gunpowder Plot, the attempt to ignite 36 barrels of gunpowder under the British Parliament. In spite of this, they were quite popular in the later Middle Ages, especially during the 15th century. As of next month, archive copies of Acts of Parliament will cease to be artists, calligraphers – hundreds of people – who are not happy about this. Secrets of medieval Europes large-scale publishing industry revealed.